Comments

No complains about the course. The professor was great at explaining. I would review at home, but I never had to learn the material at home, because the professor did a great job at explaining everything so clearly that I understood it during class.

Very good

This was a challenging, but a worthwhile course. I felt like I learned a multitude of new things in a very clear manner. I enjoyed sitting in lecture and being able to learn every day.

Andrew is a really good econ professor. He really cares about the students and if they learn the material and I enjoyed having him as a professor.

Andrey Minaev has been the best Economic instructor I have had at UNC since I started. He clearly explained the material in class. His lectures consisted of powerpoints presentation, practice problems, and poll questions. The practice problems and poll questions were great because I was able to put what I learned into practice in class. I went to Andrey Minaev's office hours about once every week. He was always on time during office hours appointments and more than willing to help me understand anything I was unclear about. A great person and a great instructor overall.

Very nice guy. He seems to care about the learning of his students.

Andrey is a fantastic instructor. You can tell that he cares that students not only understand his lectures, but that they understand fundamental micro-economic concepts. Instead of teaching in a style where he proves how smart he is, he conveys concepts in a practical and understandable manner. He always came to our class prepared, and I felt like every minute of lecture was helpful in being able to succeed on exams. His assignments along with consistent lecture attendance, had me confident that I would do fine on examinations. I was always able to find time to meet with Andrey outside of class, and when I could not make regular office hours because of another course he always found additional time to answer my questions. I know Mr. Minaev will make a great professor one day.

Good.

A great instructor that showed he cared that students understood the material

- Instructor Minaev always strove to make individual time to see with any questions I had relating to class content. His office hours were useful and very flexible. I greatly appreciated his effort.

- Lots of homework with quick feedback.
